Goodstart intranet login incident report.

The body of three-year-old Maliq Nicholas Floyd Namok-Malamoo, known to family as "Meeky", was found last year. (Supplied: Namok family) Outside court today, Goodstart CEO Julia Davison apologised to the family. "When it happened on that day at Goodstart we were devastated and we continue to be impacted by what happened on that day, but how we feel is nothing compared to how the family must feel about all of this," she said. A major Australian daycare provider has been fined more than $70,000 over the death of a toddler in its care in Cairns last year. WARNING: This story contains images of Indigenous people who have died. Three-year-old Maliq Nicholas Lloyd Namok-Malamoo, known to his family as "Meeky", was left on a Goodstart Early Learning minibus for hours on a hot summer's day in February last year. Today in the Cairns Magistrates Court, Goodstart Early Learning pleaded guilty to three charges, including failing to supervise and protect a child from harm and failing to ensure documents were accurate. In sentencing, Acting Magistrate Ann Gummow described the event as "deeply traumatic for the family, community, Goodstart staff and early childhood sector". "The issue here is that procedures were not followed and staff knew this," she told the court. "It's hard to imagine anything more serious than this." She praised Goodstart for an "impressive post-incident response" in increasing safety procedures. The not-for-profit was fined $35,000 for each of the two most serious charges - which carry a maximum penalty of $50,000 each - and $1,000 for the document charge. It will also pay court costs. Meeky was driven to the Edmonton Centre that day by former centre director Michael Glenn Lewis. Lewis has been jailed for manslaughter. Goodstart CEO apologises: The Department of Education said in a statement the financial penalty reflected the seriousness of the offences and "work with the early childhood education and care sector to promote safe transportation" would continue. The court heard there had been seven other instances of children left on buses around Queensland since the start of 2018, but that there had been only one fatality. All children are given the opportunity to explore and learn to understand the world around them as they come to communicate, discover, imagine and create. We are smaller than most centres in the area, which means we can offer you and your children a personal and homely experience. Goodstart CEO Julia Davison said the incident was devastating. (ABC News: Jemima Burt) She said the company had implemented a range of procedures to improve safety since the incident, including hiring five new safety specialists. She said the company had put in place a new process which requires a worker to send photos of every empty bus seat to a central database after each trip. "Bus transport is an inherently a risky process, we do 12,000 trips a year," she said. "We've seriously considered taking our buses off the road permanently but that's not what we want to do because if we were to do that then it's those children who benefit the most from early learning who miss out." "We've also looked at technology solutions, we've looked at solutions using infrared, solutions using tags on children's bags, we've looked at a whole range of mechanisms." "We've scanned the globe to look at what people who are transporting children are doing." The toddler's family were in court for the sentence today but offered no comment to the media. Ms Davison said she had reached out to the boy's family. "I have written to the family expressing my sincere apologies on behalf of Goodstart for what happened and I've offered to meet with the family if or whenever they would like to meet and I will keep doing that," she said. As many of our educators have migrated to Australia from around the world, they can relate to and assist many of the issues our families may encounter, and are able to offer assistance and support to our families during their stay.
